"There appears to be an opportunity of doing good to the soul of many an individual and advancing the glory of God and the reign of His church by the publication of a work like the present; the design of which is the discharging of sponsorial obligations. The event which gave rise to the writing of these letters is, the fact of their antor being the godfather of an only godchird. She is far distant, advancing in years, and under the instruction of Christian parents, no doubt, in that knowledge which maketh wise unto salvation. The plan of making them public suggested itself, and looking around to ascertain if the design of the work had not been already satisfied in the various treatises, we have upon the subject of confirmation, the author could not find that it had; he wrote; and giving, at one time, the design, table of contents, and treatment of the subject to his Diocesan, and, at another, putting the manuscript into his hands, was happy to receive his approbation of the plan."
